

The political conditions in the region substantially impacts the performance of profit and non-profit organization of the economic, financial and banking sectors, experts agreed on Tuesday. There is a need to intensify research to locate appropriate solutions to challenges that have been facing the Arab economic institutions during the last five years, they added at the Fourth International Conference on "Sustainability and Excellence Performance in Organizations Under Uncertain Environment."

The Conference, organized in cooperation between the University of Jordan's (UJ) School of Business and AL Quds Open University's Faculty of Administrative & Economic Sciences, aims to Contribute to the building of integrated system of excellence and sustainability, and positively affect the daily behaviors, actions and practices of employees in organizations, communities and society.

Co-organizing the event reflects the two parties commitment two towards enhancing the theoretical and practical knowledge of all dimensions of performance sustainability and excellence.