International Conference on:

Contemporary Issues in International Trade: A Development Lens

November 6-7, 2022

Organized jointly by WTO-Chairs of Jordan, Chile , Egypt, Mexico
Morocco, Oman, Tunisia and Turkey

Venue

School of Business-The University of Jordan
Amman – Jordan, 11942.

Background:

Industry and trade in goods and services grow on strong consumer demand; the pandemic wave, inflation, and geopolitical tensions have contributed to the deterioration of consumers' purchasing power and hence present risk to economic growth in 2022. Although, the COVID-19 pandemic, the Russian Ukrainian war, and the associated supply bottlenecks have severely disrupted the financial, labor, and goods & services international flows, global trade will nonetheless become more important and expected to continue expanding in 2022 and in 2023. In addition, empirical research has already confirmed the strong links between international trade liberalization and various aspects of socio-economic development.

Taking into accounts these unexpected international developments, the main objective of this conference is to share knowledge and expertise on the New Economy in the context of post-pandemic reality, technological changes, and its application to the economy, fastening digital transformation and the rising importance of sustainable development. The conference will present the recent developments in international trade policies and provide a quantification of the effects of trade policies and their impact on inequalities and other economic development indicators. It aims to bring together leading academic scientists, researchers and research scholars to exchange and share their experiences and research results on the recent global developments and its reflections on Economics, Business and finance environments. It also provides a premier interdisciplinary platform for researchers, practitioners, and educators to present and discuss the most recent innovations, trends, and concerns as well as practical challenges encountered and take new initiatives with the collaboration of academia, industry and policymakers across the globe.

Under the umbrella of the WTO-Chair program, the Chairs of the University of Jordan, the University of Cairo, the University of Chile, the University of Egypt, Instituto Tecnológico Autónomo de México (ITAM), the University of Oman, the University of Tunis, and University of Turkey invite scholars, government policy makers, practitioners, and other interested parties from all over the world to participate in the Seventh International Conference on: "Contemporary Issues in International Trade: A Development Lens". Empirical research presentations, and country context case studies along the conference themes as well as other related issues from all over the globe are welcomed. Delegates are invited to present completed research papers and/or work in progress. Submissions and presentations must address both the theoretical and practical implications of the findings. Parallel tracks of refereed presentations will enable authors to obtain constructive feedback on their study.

About the WTO Chairs Program:

The WTO Chairs Programme (WCP) seeks to enhance knowledge and understanding of the trading system among academics, citizens and policy makers in developing countries by stimulating teaching, research and public debate on international trade and trade cooperation at the level of tertiary education and research institutions. The WTO provides financial support to academic institutions, and facilitates continuous interaction between institutions, ministries, civil society, private sector, students and academics. It also supports academic institutions and associated individual scholars from developing countries in the following areas: course preparation, teaching, research and information dissemination. The ultimate objective of the WTO Chairs Programme is to strengthen the human and institutional capacities of universities from developing countries to support governments in the formulation of sound trade policies. One of the main objectives of WCP is to promote research focused on extending specialized knowledge and explaining the policy relevance of existing research.
